The Diary of Monsignor Cerretti with a note by V. E. Or lando. 177 Bibliography 189 FOREWORD By EDWARD M. HOUSE It pleases me to know that His Excellency, Vit torio E. Orlando, is writing, and will soon pub lish, certain incidents in his notable career, when he had the direction of Italys foreign and do mestic affairs during the World War. This is exceedingly important from the viewpoint of his torians in every land. My own endeavors during the making of the Armistice and at the Peace Conference brought me in close touch with the Italian Prime Minister. My confidence and admiration for him grew as my association with him lengthened during those turbulent years. He had a personality that won him friends and gave him power to accomplish his purposes. His colleagues always desired to go his way as far as they...
